NOMINATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE WITH EQUAL OR LOWER PRIORITY

Alaska law establishes who has priority to serve as the personal representative of an estate. This list shows the priority from highest to lowest: (1) the will named you as the personal representative; (2) you are the surviving spouse named in will to receive property; (3) you are named in the will to receive property; (4) you are the surviving spouse but there was no will or the will did not name you to receive property; (5) there was no will but you have the right to inherit property from the person who died; (6) you are a creditor.

Sometimes people who have priority to serve as the personal representative for an estate do not want to serve and instead want to nominate someone with equal or lower priority to be the personal representative. Each person who has equal or higher priority over the nominated person must consent to the nominated person being the personal representative by filling out this form. The person nominated to serve as the personal representative should file all completed Nomination forms with their request to start probate and appoint a personal representative with the court.

1. I have equal or higher priority to serve as personal representative over the person whom I nominated below.
2. I do NOT want to serve as the personal representative.
3. I nominate (name) _____ to serve as the personal representative.
4. I waive the requirement for the nominated person to post a surety bond. [A bond is a cash payment or pledge of property that guarantees the personal representative will fulfill his or her duties. However, the requirement is commonly waived.]
5. Verification [Sign in front of a notary or court clerk; have your ID with you.]
