

Effective March 24, 2020, all Alaska State Court Law Libraries are closed to the public – this includes after-hours access in Fairbanks and Juneau. Law Library staff will continue to work and will provide expanded distance-delivery options until normal operations resume.

We will:

- Send you specific cases if you have citations
- Send you chapters of treatises that we have in our electronic collection or in print
- Send legislative history information
- Send you a table of contents or index from a treatise if you don't know exactly what you need
- Run a Westlaw search and provide the results list from which you can select cases and then send the cases you would like to see
- Run a search in HeinOnline or any of our other databases, provide results, and then provide selected articles
- Help you navigate the electronic materials that are available remotely

What we need from you:

- Your name
- Your phone number
- Your email or physical address
- What you need (with as much information as you can provide, including a citation if you have it):

- o Case information
- o Statute number and year (if not current statutes)
- o Article title and author
- o Treatise title and whether you need a portion or the table of contents/index
- o As much information as you have if you are looking for legislative history
- o What you are looking for if you want us to run a search in a database (we will search using your words)
- o Any limitations on the searches we run for you (such as jurisdiction, court, or date)
- o The order you would like results in if we run a search for you (most relevant, most cited, newest, oldest)
- o How many results you would like to see (up to the first 50 results)
- o Which cases you want from the results (up to 20 cases per request)
