

In this piece, I featured Lady Justice defending a group of people. I wanted to symbolize the way that the court system stands for the people no matter who they are or what they look like. I also only did this piece in red, white, and blue to show the significance of justice and freedom in the United States. All of the people in the background are different, but all of them are red, white, and blue! Lady Justice is defending them all, just like I believe America's court system does for its citizens today.
