

In my Justice for All poster, I began by drawing a tree with many different size and color leaves. This tree shows that all people have the same roots, and are originally the same. Like a plant needs water, sunlight, and air to grow and specialize, people need justice and equality to have a peaceful civilization. Which is why I drew a judge's hammer and an equality scale to represent justice and equality. I also drew leaves in a variety of colors to represent all kinds of people such a black, white, Hispanic, Muslim, European, short and tall. No matter how you like or what you believe, everybody comes from the same place, and is human. Finally I drew cultural symbols inside the leaves to represent the equality of all cultures and beliefs.

Adam Edais

Second Prize, Category K-4

Grade 2, Sand Lake Elementary School